My name is Vincent and I work as a freelancing web designer and developer in Stockholm, Sweden.

Design and technology has always been my main interests and with both these passions web designer is a great combination! After studying system development and computer science I've been freelancing. I've also worked at and with some different agencies with both small and some very big clients.

When I'm not working with clients I like to work on side projects and open-source tools to keep the creativity and mind going.
